

DROPPED TWO GAMES.

Connellsville Lost Again Yesterday to the Butler Outfit.

PLAY CLARKSBURG AT HOME

This Afternoon at Marietta Park—Local Boys Are Still in First Place and Will Make a Desperate Effort to Stay There.

Connellsville dropped two straight games to the Butler team at Butler. They lost yesterday 6 to 2. The locals never had a chance to win. The Butler boys hit the ball for eleven safe wallop, while Connellsville was collecting seven bingles. Gaiser pitched and the Soap Miners got next to his delivery when his meant runs. Connellsville comes home in first place however. This afternoon they stuck up against Clarksburg and hope to break the losing streak.

Yesterday Butler scored three runs in the second inning on consecutive hitting. They garnered another in the fourth and two more in the fifth. Connellsville scored a run in the sixth and one in the ninth. Hart and Ambury making the circuit. Captain Foster did the best hitting for Connellsville, having a two bagger and a single. Gaiser was a little unsteady at times, hitting two batsmen, but he did not give a base on balls.

Butler threw a fit at defeating the leaders in two games. They are still a good ways from the lead, however, which Connellsville fully intends to increase in their games today and the coming week. The score:

Two lost.
Tulacoma is due to lose today.
The Champs have won two games and have visions of another pennant.
We have not revised our opinion that the Champs will not land one two three this season in the P. C. M. James of Washington is a slugger.
When he lands on the ball it is usually ticketed for some distant point in the lot.
We are still at the top of the percentage column. Get together boys and increase the lead.
We will take that grin off Lawson's pike, before the end of the season.
Essler has been hitting the ball well on the trip. He has also been fielding well, as has the team as a whole.
Frankenberry who catches for Butler is a Point, Marlon boy.
Billy Baris's boys are coming along fast. The old fellow will get his team into a stride that will be hard to check before long.
Tiffany got the glad hand at Beaver Falls and Butler for his clever work at first.

DIVELEY SENTENCED.

Convicted of Part in Horse Stealing He Gets Seven Years.

WEPT AND SOBBED IN COURT.

Will Have to Undergo Confinement in the Western Penitentiary for Seven Years—Had Served Similar Sentence Once Before.

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, May 10.—Henry J. Diveley was sentenced today to seven years of separate and solitary confinement at hard labor in the Western Penitentiary at Allegheny, in addition to paying a fine of $300 and the costs of prosecution, the sentence being imposed upon conviction at the February term of court on a charge of receiving a team of horses stolen by Harry Sheets, a well known young man of Berlin, who has been in the courts here several times. Sheets was convicted of stealing a fine team of horses from Andrew C. Bushey in Clearfield county and was given a six month penitentiary sentence which he is now serving. He was called from the Western Penitentiary to testify against Diveley and he told the story that he brought the horses to Diveley's barn after he had stolen them. Diveley knowing the arrangements and having full knowledge of the disposition which Sheets contemplated making of his stolen property. The horses were recovered and restored to their owner, Bushey. Diveley was indicted and convicted. An application for a new trial was made several weeks ago by his attorneys, Kountz & Ogle and W. H. Ruppel, and today this application was refused by the court for reasons set forth in his written statement.
This afternoon Diveley was brought into court, his aged father being in the court room. His attorneys, John G. Ogle and William H. Ruppel, made short appeals to the court for leniency in sentence, alleging that Diveley had, apparently, been led into the crime and was not really responsible for the harboring of the horses stolen by Sheets in his barn. Arguing that, in private counsel for the prosecution, then arose and stated that Diveley had been frequently connected with cases involving the principles of mine and yours and that he had served a sentence in the penitentiary upon conviction on an indictment for larceny and receiving stolen goods. The court then pronounced sentence.
The whole proceeding was filled with the sobs and wails of Diveley, who seemed to be very contrite and penitent. His aged father also wept profusely when he heard the rather heavy sentence pronounced upon his son. Diveley was conveyed to the jail by Sheriff Begley.
Diveley was evidently sincere in his weeping. Diveley on previous occasion poured forth a flood of tears and promises of future good behavior when about to be sentenced. He will be taken to the "pen" some time this week.

LIBRARY REPORT FOR LAST YEAR.

Miss Anna B. Day Gives Statistics That Make Good Showing.

A LACK OF FUNDS HANDICAPS.

Town Council Is Urged to Make Necessary Appropriation to Meet Growing Needs of the Library—Tabulated Report for Year Ending May 1.

Miss Anna B. Day, Librarian of the Carnegie Free Library, yesterday gave out her annual report of the library for the past year to the Board of Trustees. During the year there was a total of 616 volumes added to the library, there now being on record in the library 5,566 volumes. During the year the library has received gifts as follows: 20 volumes, 357 magazines. The receipt of these is gratefully acknowledged. Among these a set of messages and papers of the Presidents, from Dr. E. P. Clark, and a set of Bates' History of the Civil War, from C. F. Hood, deserve special mention. Mr. Hood also secured for the library a collection of mineral and agricultural products that will be very useful when properly displayed. A special set of shelves should be provided to give them the space needed, and to protect them from dust and insects.

One hundred and twenty volumes, which are too badly worn to circulate longer, have been withdrawn from the shelves. On account of the increased work with the schools it has been necessary to duplicate quite a number of books and next year many more duplicates will be needed.

The periodical room of the library is supplied with 83 different magazines and periodicals. Of the popular magazines, the number immediately preceding the current issue is circulated for three days at a time. Quite a number of people avail themselves of this opportunity to keep up with the topics of the day.

The library has been open for the circulation of books 308 days during the year, from May to October, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. The reading rooms have been open every day in the year except Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Merchants' Picnic Day and Sundays from May to October.

The number of books circulated was 35,821, an increase of 6,276 over that of last year, or 19.3 per cent., and an increase of 11,436 over the first year the library was opened, or 41 per cent. A fair percentage of this increase is due to the reading course which has been introduced into the schools this year.

Statistics of circulation mean nothing without comparison. It may be clearer to put it in this way: the library lends four books a year to each inhabitant, or circulated each year seven times the number of volumes in its collection of books.

At the close of last year the registration of borrowers numbered 2,538. At the close of the year just gone, the registration was 3,503 borrowers, or an increase during the year of 965 readers.

The percentage of works of fiction from the adult department and during the year was the same as last year, 72 per cent, but the fiction percentage in the juvenile department fell from 67 per cent to 61 per cent, making a total fiction percentage of 71 per cent, which is one per cent. less than last year, a decrease which indicates progress, even though it be slight.

The use of the library for educational purposes has grown rapidly during the past year. The Superintendent of the schools, the Principal of the High School and the Librarian agreed upon supplementary reading lists which were recommended to the pupils to read. These lists have been extensively used and the pupils have prepared book reports upon the books read.

From October to May the library was open on Sunday afternoons from 2 to 6 o'clock. The total attendance for the 29 Sundays was 1,133 persons, or an average attendance of 41 persons. This record shows a falling off of 33 per cent. less than last year. This is attributed to the opening of the Y. M. C. A. and the men's meetings on Sunday afternoons, as many of the regular Sunday visitors are members of that organization. It is to be regretted that the library men for whom the library is open especially on Sundays, do not avail themselves of this opportunity for self-improvement. The principal Sunday patronage during the past year has been children who come regularly to the library during the week.

One of the most encouraging features of the library work is the interest which the little children take in the "Story Hour." This has been held on Saturday mornings in the basement of the library, where a special room was fitted up this year for that purpose. The old room having become too small. A rug was placed on the floor for the children to sit on, no chairs being used, potted plants in the windows, pictures on the walls, and, last but not least, the eager faces of the children looking up into the face of the "Storyteller," make a picture not easily to be forgotten. The stories told are mainly from myth, legend, folk and fairy tales. The average attendance was 34 but the attendance ranged from 19 to 100.

Book repair in the library is done to the extent of cleaning, mending torn and loose pages, gluing loose backs, etc. 3,566 books being so treated during the past year. When the sewing is loosened and the binding badly worn the books are sent to the bindery. All new children's books and popular fiction in light bindings are shelved, and it is hoped that this treatment will prove satisfactory both for the preservation and cleanliness.

Many of the books sent to the bindery could be rebound in the library if a binding outfit were provided. The original outfit would cost about $150. Out in the end much would be saved in time and cost of binding.

Quite a number of valuable specimens for a museum have been received by the library, among which may be named a collection of birds from Dr. S. D. Woods, mineral and agricultural products from C. F. Hood, shells and minerals from H. B. Gage and others. There is no suitable place to display these specimens and the Librarian would recommend that shelving be provided with glass doors so that the collection, which is growing all the time, could be made useful to the public.

Lack of necessary funds has handicapped the work of the library very considerably during the year and it is hoped that the Town Council will see fit to make the necessary appropriation to meet the growing needs of the institution.

Following is the tabulated report of the library for the year ending on May 1, 1930:

From Westmoreland's County Seat.

GREENSBURG, May 11.—The State Commissioner of Health was notified by telegraph last night that a quarantine is necessary in Greensburg, Jeannette and vicinity over the recent rampage of a mad dog. The notice resulted from an official report from the Magee Pathological Institute in Pittsburgh, signed by Dr. N. Litvin, the noted Italian, and stating that the dog's brain showed marked infiltration of the ganglionic cells and that hydrophobia was certain.

It is expected that Dr. Klingensmith of Jeannette will be here this afternoon to take charge of the situation. Many dogs have been killed. A general muzzling order is expected, and the State police are ready to do patrol duty. The whereabouts of the dog all day last Saturday is still a mystery and makes the situation more grave. The animal, owned by W. B. Esper of Jeannette, went mad Friday evening, biting two people there. He didn't show up in Greensburg until Sunday evening, and was killed the following Monday. He was seen as far south as Youngwood, and may have gone further. It will be necessary to patrol this large area in order that the citizens may be protected. Much alarm is felt over the situation.

The knockout that Mike Gannon handed to Johnny Piles at Latrobe a week ago promises to be a knockout to prize fighting in Westmoreland county. Piles went down and out for ten minutes, and hasn't been feeling in the best of health since. The authorities have learned the inside facts of the situation, and now boxing advertisements are very strong on the "exhibition" order. Gannon meets Al Martin at Derry next week and an interesting go is expected. It's on the boards as an "Exhibition," but the word has gone around that something will be doing towards a finish contest which will take a great many sports to the little railroad town.

John Young, one of Greensburg's talented musicians, is a candidate for Director of the Poor. John has not yet formally announced, but he is looking over the field, and says he has many friends to support him.

The departure of Cyrus B. Woods from Greensburg has made legal changes. Gaither & Woods will be Gaither & Whitten, Charles E. Whitten being junior partner. Smith & Whitten will be Smith & Snyder, the firm members being J. R. Smith and D. J. Snyder. Greensburg wishes the two new firms much success.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Little Kock Boy Got Hold of Paint Remover by Mistake.

During the visit of Mrs. W. C. Kock and her little son Karl, of Latrobe at the home of the latter's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kock, of Broad Ford, Master Karl had a narrow escape from death by poisoning, having gotten hold of a bottle of paint remover and having drunk a large quantity of it. The stuff was poisonous and nothing but the prompt discovery of the child's act by the grandfather and the prompt summoning of a physician saved his life. The child is now reported as being out of danger.

HELD FOR COURT.

Four of Six Car Robbers at Everson Are Given a Hearing.

THE BAIL IS PLACED AT $500.

Only Two of the Number Were Men and It Is Believed More Are Implicated—Funeral of Mrs. Rebecca O. Keister Held.

SCOTSDALE, May 11.—The preliminary hearing of the several men and boys arrested charged with breaking into railroad cars, theft and receiving stolen goods, was held before Justice of the Peace William McLaughlin at Everson on Friday afternoon, and four of them were bound over to jail to answer at Uniontown to the charges made against them. Those arrested were Mike Krohn and Andy Krohn, his son, aged about 12, Andy Sivak and his son, Andy, aged about seven. All these were Slavs and the men had been employed about the coke works. There were two young boys, Donald Leasure, white, and Leo Robinson, a colored boy. The boys were apparently under the spell of the modern fad, and assisted in the work of despoiling cars of various goods. It seems the Leasure and Robinson boys had only enjoyed some of the enticements found in the cars, after the stuff had been brought outside, and there was not enough evidence to hold them.

Rev. P. D. Steelsmith, pastor of the United Evangelical Church, has an outline of busy work ahead. Last evening at 7:45 Rev. P. M. Bartlett, Presiding Elder of the Somerset charge, preached at the Scottish Mission on Bridge street. There will be preaching at the Bridgeport Church at 7:30 this evening by Rev. Bartlett. There will be preaching again there on Sunday morning at 10:30 followed by communion. There will be R. L. of C. E. at 6:45, followed by a sermon by Rev. Bartlett. The Sunday services at the Scottish Mission are prayer meeting at 10 A. M., Sunday school at 2:30 and K. L. of C. E. at 6:45. There will be preaching on Sunday and Sunday evening at 7:45. During the coming week there will be services held every evening at the same hour. Rev. J. Q. A. Curry of Johnstown will preach on Thursday and Friday evenings. He was formerly pastor at Mt. Pleasant.

The funeral services over the body of Mrs. Rebecca O. Keister, widow of the late Solomon Keister, the pioneer coke and coal operator of Owensdale took place from her late residence on Millinery street at 3:30 Friday afternoon. The services were in charge of Rev. J. L. Leichter, pastor of the Owensdale United Brethren Church of which deceased was a member, assisted by Rev. W. W. Williamson, pastor of the Scottish United Brethren Church. The pall bearers were Joseph Robbins, M. B. Porter, William Muir, M. P. Storer, Dr. J. H. Leichter and S. H. Mighit. The burial was private at the Scottish Cemetery.

Mrs. Frederick Myers, aged 60, is dead at her home in Everson. She is survived by her husband and a number of children. The funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at her late residence on Railroad street, Everson.

Henry Cossell, yard superintendent for the Frick company at Broad Ford was sworn into office as Road Supervisor of Upper Tyrone township by Justice John C. Brownfield of Everson on Friday. He succeeded the late Ernest Sauters. His father, Isaac Cossell, was for many years Supervisor and Constable in the township. The Board of Road Supervisors is composed of Thomas Connor, President, and G. W. Strickler and Henry Cossell.

Rev. Archibald Auld, the pastor, will preach at the Wesley Chapel M. E. Church on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock; at Jacobs Creek at 3 P. M., and at Alverton at 7:30. This is bringing the services at Jacobs Creek back at the old time, and many Scottdale people enjoy going to the services in this country church that has stood so long.

The body of Michael J. Hawar, who died at the Health House, Holmdel, New Jersey, on Thursday, aged 50 years, arrived here today. He leaves a wife and the following children: William G. Wilkinsburg; Lemuel O. Derry; Mrs. John Q. Nixon, Youngwood; Curtis G. and Clyde V., Scottdale.

Harry J. Springer, the photographer, has scored another winning in a contest at the Pennsylvania Convention held at Williamsport, when he received a bronze medal for pictures that he entered. Mr. Springer has won quite a number of prizes at various times for his work.

A number of prospective bidders on the Anderson Run sewer contract, for which bids will be opened on Tuesday evening, will accompany J. B. Hogg the engineer, over the ground on Monday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock.

Miss Frances Strickler and Miss Conwell of Uniontown were here on Friday visiting friends.

Don't forget to send in your coupons for the Pony Contest.

To People Who Are Not "Well Off."

THERE are many ways of furnishing a home, even if you are not well fixed in money matters. Some are desirable ways, others are not. One way is to furnish the whole home with cheap furniture, costing but little money and lasting not much longer than the money. Another way is to buy one or two good pieces of furniture at a time, gradually completing the home as your cash permits. It's a better way than the first but it's tedious and doesn't make a very comfortable home. The other way is what we call

"The Aaron Way"

It consists of buying the very best of furniture—the kind you won't be ashamed to have your visitors see—the kind that will last a lifetime—buying everything you need for your home—thus getting the home life and home comforts immediately. But, you, you protest, how about paying for it? There's the point. There's where "The Aaron Way" comes in. We don't ask you to pay for it all at once—don't expect you to pay any more than you can pay conveniently each week or month. You don't need to do any worrying. Let us do it, if there's any to be done

Why Not Try "The Aaron Way?"

AARON credit is clean credit, dignified credit—the kind that doesn't sacrifice your self respect. You'd be surprised to know how many of your neighbors buy "The Aaron way." And you're just as welcome to its conveniences as they are. Come, get your home fixed up for spring and summer. Try "The Aaron Way."

There's No Red Tape About It.

WE make no confusing or unnecessary provisions in our dealings with credit customers. Our plan is as simple as a, b, c. In fact there's no plan about it—you simply buy all you want—the best on earth is here to select from—and then pay for it in bits, as you can. We will show you by our treatment that we value your trade, that we want you to become customers of ours for life. We consider your patronage as a favor to us. We show our appreciation by favoring you in every possible way. It's an "even break." No obligations on either side. Just a simple business deal. Come and try "The Aaron Way."

MOYER NOT THE MAN

Tale That He Served Term in Joliet Penitentiary Is Denied.

STRAIN AT BOISE IS RELAXED

Believed Now That Haywood Trial Will Be Concluded in a Week or Two Without Any Sensational Happenings—Sheriff Hunts Talsman.

Boise, Idaho, May 11.—There is noticeable evidence of relaxation in the atmosphere of Boise. Notwithstanding an outward appearance of apathy and lack of interest in the case, there has existed for some time in Boise an extremely tense condition. Reports as to what might happen either before the trial opened or during its progress have tended to create a decided feeling of uneasiness.

A story printed by the Chicago Journal charging that one Charles Moyer, who in 1896 sentenced to one year in Joliet penitentiary was printed here and created much discussion. That C. H. Moyer, the prisoner now in the jail here, charged with the murder of former Governor Steuneger, is one and the same man is denied by the prisoner and his counsel. Moyer, when seen on the subject, said he was working in the mine in the Black Hills country of South Dakota at the time of incarceration which is given as between February 4, 1896, and January 4, 1897. He states that it would be easy to verify this by the records of the Cattle Creek Gold Mining Co. at Rockford, S. D., where, he says, he was working at the time. Moyer also said that the postmaster at Rockford would be able to testify as to his receiving mail at the time and that the officers of the county and the state would verify his denial of the story that he was an inmate of the Joliet penitentiary at that time.

Guessing About Orchard.
Several members of the Western Federation of Miners, now in Boise watching the progress of the case, do not join the belief existing in some quarters that Orchard will refuse to testify. They believe that he will make his statement on the stand. On all sides there is a question as to how far Orchard will be allowed to go in his statement, which, it is alleged, implicates Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone. It is around this evidence that the whole case undoubtedly will move.

The presence in the city of a number of private detectives employed by both sides and the outspoken attacks by the radical element of the Socialists, necessarily brought out many rumors purporting to come from authentic sources of probable trouble such as an attack on the jail or an attempt to spirit away some of the chief witnesses for the prosecution.

The proceedings in the court room did much to dissipate this. There was a spirit of give and take. A joke from one or another of counsel, or laugh caused by the answer of a witness acted as safety valves, and when the day was over the strain was relaxed, and every one breathed easier.

Will Not Delay Trial.
"We expect the sheriff will select his veniremen with fairness and with care so as to enable us to procure an impartial jury. If the right class of men is selected we will not take a long time to obtain a jury."

While the number of witnesses to be called on both sides looks formidable there is good reason to believe that a large number of these witnesses will not be in attendance. A considerable portion of the witnesses for the prosecution live in Colorado or in other neighboring states. This is also true of the defense, as the home of the prisoners is in Colorado, and it is not possible to bring them to Idaho against their will.

Lawyers of Boise not connected in any way with the case, but who know as much as is known of what both sides expect to do any time after the jury is procured the trial of the case ought to be over in two weeks. Judge Fremont Wood expects to waste no time, and another adjournment is not looked for after Monday. The court will sit from 10 a. m. to noon, and from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m., and sometimes until 6 o'clock, with one long session on Saturdays.

Selecting Jury to Try Hargis.
Lexington, Ky., May 11.—The special venire of 300 men summoned from Scott county from whom a jury will be selected to try Judge James Hargis for the assassination of James Cockrill at Jackson, Breathitt county, reported in the circuit court here and the work of selecting a jury began immediately. This is the first trial of Judge Hargis since any Breathitt murder charges, and it is said that new and sensational testimony will be presented.

General Willcox Dead.
Detroit, May 11.—General Willcox has been received here that Brigadier General Orlando B. Willcox, U. S. A., retired, former governor of the National Soldiers' home at Washington, is dead at Cobourg, Ont., aged 85.

Oxford Honors Mark Twain.
Baltimore, Md., May 11.—In an interview published here, Mark Twain said he had been offered the degree of bachelor of letters by Oxford university, and would sail for England on June 8 to receive the honor.

Columbus, O., May 11.—Peter Hinterschell, a pioneer German journalist, fell dead in St. Mary's church after having passed the collection box.

Harrisburg, May 11.—The senate passed finally a bill appropriating $10,000 for a bronze statue of General Arthur St. Clair of Revolutionary fame.

Meadville, Pa., May 11.—Colonel Samuel B. Dick, age 71, died last night of pneumonia. Col. Dick was a veteran of the Civil war and a 3rd degree Mason.

Washington, Pa., May 11.—Mrs. Eliza Crouch of Centerville, while gathering wild flowers, fell over a 45-foot cliff into a creek. She sustained injuries that may result fatally.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 11.—Dependent over constant trouble since her marriage last January, Mrs. O. C. Kinnell, age 28 years, committed suicide by holding her head in a spring.

Pittsburg, May 11.—D. S. Davis of Marietta, O., has caused the arrest of W. J. Adams, Frank Thompson and F. S. Ranger of this city on the charge of having lured him out of a large sum of money.

Ravenna, O., May 11.—C. Z. Loomis, a builder and contractor, was badly stung by a swarm of bees. Physicians worked with him a long time to prevent fatal effects of the stings, which weakened his heart.

Harrisburg, May 11.—George Frick, age 25, was killed on the railroad while a constable was searching for him with a warrant for his arrest charged with striking Mrs. Emma Johnson with a hammer.

Allegheny, Pa., May 11.—Mrs. Carrie Sigsworth, wife of Alexander Sigsworth, a molder, during her husband's absence, shot and killed her 18-month-old baby and herself. Domestic difficulties were the cause.

Manchester, O., May 11.—William Purcell, proprietor of a livery stable here, was killed at Newark, N. J., by a horse running away and throwing him from the buggy. He recently went to Newark with a car of horses.

Lancaster, Pa., May 11.—Charles Martin, wanted for a number of burglaries, was shot and killed last night by Policemen Overly. Martin showed two revolvers into the policeman's face, but before he could shoot Overly fired.

Hamilton, O., May 11.—In three weeks' onslaught on rats in the Butler county hamlet of Woods two young men, with three good rat dogs, have chalked up a total tally of 1,420 rodents killed, yet the number does not appear to have been greatly diminished.

Bradenville, Pa., May 11.—Fire originating in a stable has inflicted approximately $100,000 damage upon this village. Several residences were burned, some of the occupants escaping in their night clothes. The story is told that the blaze was the work of firebugs.

Monaca, Pa., May 11.—The entire plant of the Colonial Steel works at Colonia is closed as a result of a strike. Nearly 1,000 men are idle. The engineers and machinists were getting time and a half for all work done on Saturday night and Sunday. A new manager wanted to cut out the extra pay for overtime.

Bellaire, O., May 11.—Mrs. Nancy Antill of Witten Creek, south of here, was 107 years old last Wednesday. Her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Edwards of Barnhill, Tuscarawas county, is 88 years old and has a dozen children, all having great-grandchildren. Mrs. Antill is therefore a great-great-grandmother and has over 200 descendants.

Youngstown, O., May 11.—The adherents of Father Aloysius Lope, rector of St. Anthony's Italian Catholic church, who has been excommunicated by Bishop Horstmann, has raised $11,000 toward the erection of a new church. It is claimed 1,000 members of the congregation will stand by the priest, while but three members are against him.

McKeesport, Pa., May 11.—Misleading Philadelphia for New York, Mrs. Deana Mull, an aged McKeesport woman, became lost in the streets of that city and is now in a hospital. The Quaker City police could get nothing from the bewildered woman but her name and "Water street, McKeesport." They wrote to Postmaster Dersam, who found that Mrs. Mull has relatives living on that street. She will be taken care of.

Sunbury, Pa., May 11.—Pointing at a small American flag, George Fogg, a Canadian, exclaimed: "That flag is nothing more to me than an old dishrag; it's the Union Jack for me." The news of Fogg's remarks spread like wildfire. He was ordered to carry an American flag on his shoulder, and march over a mile to his boarding house at Northumberland. He was guarded on one side by a man with a rope and on the other by a man carrying a revolver.

Never Washes Her Face.
Webster City, Iowa, May 11.—Miss Amanda Johnson of this city, one of the most beautiful women in northwestern Iowa, has not washed her face for 15 years. Though she is 50 years old and unwed, she is far from being an old maid. She is bright and cheerful and fun-loving. Her face is free from wrinkles and complexion faultless as the skin of a baby.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York, May 11.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade today says:

"Weather conditions unreasonable almost beyond precedent have retarded all trade and agriculture to an extent that can not yet be measured, but the loss will be considerable. Spring opened with the brightest prospects for business and crops, but record breaking results can no longer be attained. May thus far has brought complaints of excessive cold from almost every section of the country, and in many cases it is found that mercantile collections have been slow on that account. Freight congestion is relieved, however, and traffic is very heavy, partly in preparation for fall and winter business, which is viewed with confidence, while last year's pressure causes a big movement of coal and attractive prices bring a vast tonnage of wheat to primary markets. The outlook in the iron and steel industry was never brighter. Steel rails are constantly ordered, much new business being in sight for trolley lines, and makers of agricultural implements are purchasing bars freely."

"Textile mills are still actively engaged as a rule, but in the primary markets there is some irregularity. Cotton goods are no cheaper, but the effect of the backward season on retail trade is felt in all departments."

CIRCUS ANIMALS.
How Carl Hagenbeck Secures Them for His Hamburg Exchange in Their Native Wilds.

The most famous wild animal exchange in the world is to be found at Stellingen, a pretty little suburb of the port of Hamburg. It is presided over by Carl Hagenbeck, one of the owners of the Hagenbeck & Wallace Circus, which comes here Wednesday, May 22, who may be well be described as the world's zoological purveyor.

He is the one individual to whom you must go if you are seeking a hippopotamus, or a rhinoceros, or any other rare beast. He keeps them in stock, just as a horse dealer keeps a number of horses. His collection of wild beasts, reptiles, and birds is larger and more valuable than the animals found in any one zoological garden in Europe. His depot, which is also a zoological park, occupies some 35 acres of ground.

How this curious merchandise is collected and transported to Hamburg, makes a thrilling reading. Taken in essence, the lion, the acknowledged King of Beasts, few visitors to a zoological garden are aware that they are taken in the wilds of Abyssinia or the Egyptian Sudan, when mere cubs, by natives at the expressed order of a European traveler. The mother is snared by the blacks, and the young ones removed to the camp, where they are nursed on goat's milk and pieces of fowl until old enough to browse the same as their fathers across the seas to Europe. Tigers are obtained in much the same way, as lions, although many adult ones are caught in large pitfalls. Lions vary a great deal in price, ranging from $5,000 to as much as $15,000 apiece. "Crown Prince," the riding lion, is probably worth about $5,000 but, of course, will not be sold as long as Mr. Hagenbeck is interested in a circus.

The common Indian tiger costs about $300, but a fine specimen of the Siberian variety is worth from $1,200 to $1,500.

It is the same with most wild beasts. You have to take them from their mother when quite young. It is perfectly feasible, of course, to surround a grown animal and capture it, but it would only strangle itself to death in its efforts to get free.

Mr. Hagenbeck has recently imported a number of giraffes, an animal which is by no means easy to obtain, and a beast that is getting rather scarce. They are caught by natives, who hunt them on quiet Abyssinian plains. When they come across a herd of giraffes they drive them forward as fast as they can, at such a pace that it is impossible for the young ones to keep up with the mothers. When the little ones are exhausted, they are caught, hauled are fastened around their heads, and they are taken to the camp. It may interest Courier readers to learn that giraffes sell from $4,000 to $5,000 a pair.

Mr. Hagenbeck sent out recently to secure some Mongolian wild horses. His travelers penetrated to the northern border of the Gobi desert, where they found themselves in the land of the Kirghiz, a tribe noted for its horses and expert horsemanship. Engaging the services of nearly 2,000 Kirghiz horsemen and taking with them 50 blood mares in foal, the collectors sought the desert home of the wild horse. After a series of exciting adventures, 63 young colts from the wild horse species were secured and brought on domestic mares taken along with the hunting party. This expedition was in the field nearly 18 months, and its expenses totaled $50,000.

Mr. Hagenbeck's latest animal act, and one which is attracting much attention with the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows is a sea lion, which actually juggles various articles while riding on a running horse "Floppie," as she is called on account of her awkwardness, is the only sea lion in the world that rides a horse, leave alone performing remarkable feats of juggling, and is another evidence of the wonderful accomplishments of Mr. Hagenbeck's animal trainers.

Bassett was the last visitor. He was in a tremendous hurry. The petition was already receiving support and signatures on every hand. The newspapers were full of it. And he who had furnished the signs of defense was now working heart and soul for the respite, for which there was still every reason to hope. So said Bassett in a breath and was gone next minute. It was the last piece of news that heartened Tom most, the news that the noble unknown believed in him still, against judge and jury, and was still heroically striving to save his miserable life. Who could he be? Some friend of Claire's? The thought came for the first time. It never came again. Claire was with the judge, the jury and the world. She had not written him a word.

Tom was now in prison dress, a gaunt, dread figure, but they had let him keep a slip of paper that he had often taken out of a pocket in his own clothes to pore over and to dream upon. He produced it now. It was the slip of paper Daintree had handed down to him during the proceedings at Marylebone, and he had never seen the writer's face. But he had made a face unto himself; had built up a character from those few scribbled words, and both face and character were, the sweetest, the kindest and the best that had existed upon earth during the last 1,860 years.

So when his last visitor had departed the condemned man was not ashamed to kiss that furled scroll with his lips not afterwards to find it smudged with his tears.

Those were the days when the capital convicts were first found guilty, next brought up for sentence and next "reported to the king." The two latter functions rested with the recorder of London, the last having its origin in the number of offenses for which a man might be condemned to death without the least risk of being executed. The recorder would wait upon his majesty in council and make his report of the prisoners lying in Newgate under sentences of death, whereupon the king would be graciously pleased to respite, say, all but the willful murderers. The amended report was straightway dispatched to the prison and his final fate broken to each man without a moment's unnecessary delay.

It was the 18th of May and a Thursday night near the stroke of 12. All was silent in the condemned cells, for even Cressy's voluble tongue had ceased to wag, and Tom lay thinking on his bed. His companion was a trashy hound, ever cursing God or cursing his own soul, and Tom lay half the night, venting covert spite and enmity upon him day after day. Tonight he had been alternately protesting his innocence, abusing his dead wife and mocking heaven and hell by the hour together. Tom lay awaiting the reaction which would follow as surely as the morning, and tonight it was before its time. The silence had been dead indeed, but not long so when the creature leaped from his pallet with a scream. Next instant he was kneeling by his neighbor, fawning upon Tom with trembling arms and twitching fingers.

"Erichsen, the report! It's come!"

"I done it! I done it!" he whispered hoarsely. "There! I had to tell somebody, and I have. I'd got to tell or burst. I feel better now. No, no!" he was yelling next moment. "What have I said? I was joking, you flat-joking, I tell you! Ha, ha, ha! It's you that done yours! I never done 'nuff at all!"

And he was strutting up and down the cell, trembling from head to foot and laughing horribly through his chattering teeth.

But a worse sound yet cut his laughter short. It was the sound of voices and the rattling of keys.

Cressy inclined his bullet head one moment, then stumbled to the door and fell heavily upon his knees.

"The report!" he quavered. "Erichsen, the report! It's come! It's come!"

CHAPTER XIII.
THE condemned youths heard the next cell entered and their comrade Carter roused from his bed. A key then grated in their own door, it was swung open, and there were Mr. Cope, the governor, and a bevy of turnkeys in the passage. "Out with it!" gasped Cressy, on his knees. "I'm respited, ain't I? I never done it, sir. I never did. The king wouldn't bang an innocent man?"

"Get up and dress yourself," was the reply. "You will hear the report upstairs, all of you together. You, too, Erichsen. Slip on your things."

Tom obeyed and then lent a hand to Cressy, who hardly knew his small clothes from his jacket, and clung to Tom as a child to its nurse.

"I'm innocent," he kept mumbling. "They'll be the murderers if they let me swing. Didn't I tell you I was innocent, Erichsen? Haven't I said so all along? Oh, my Gawd, if they let me swing!"

"They won't," whispered Tom. "But if they did, why, we've got to die some time. It's an easy death, and there's an end to it."

"But I don't want to die! I don't die! I don't deserve to die! Don't I keep telling you I never done it?"

And the abject thing clung blubbering to Tom's arm as the turnkey who was waiting at the door conducted the pair upstairs.

The upper day room, or cell ward, as it was indifferently termed, was but poorly lighted with candles, whose soot-purplish rays added a pallor even to the white faces of those dragged from their beds to hear their doom. The number of the latter being now complete, all fourteen were ordered to kneel, and Tom found himself between Cressy and Carter at one end of the line. Cressy still clung to his arm. Carter knelt like a rock, with his great fingers clutched in front of him and heavy drops falling on them from his bearded brow. This was all Tom saw before the ordinary crier in his gown and halberd before him first.

"Mr. Erichsen," said he, with a compassionate tremor, "the recorder has this evening made his report to the king. I am very sorry to have to inform you that it is unfavorable."

Tom inclined his head. He had cherished no hopes.

The ordinary approached Carter. "I am sorry to tell you it is all against you also," he continued. "As for you, Cressy," and the latter tightened his grip on Tom's arm, "I am happy to inform you that your life is spared, and I am very happy to inform all the others that by the royal mercy their lives are spared."

Cressy withdrew his hand from Tom's arm and edged further away on his knees. A deep sigh rose from a dozen benches; then as the chaplain was about to offer up a prayer there came a sudden crash at Tom's side, and the wretched Carter was floundering on the floor in convulsions. The rest were hurried back to their cells, and Cressy executed a breakdown while Tom quietly undressed.

"But that's all right!" cried the former, stooping suddenly. "It's no more 'n I expected, 'cause, you see, I'm an innocent man an' allus was: that's why you never caught me showing the white. Erichsen, though once or twice you thought you did. Jiggered if you wouldn't believe anything, a mug like you! Why, I used to blick you every blooming night for fun! Not but what I'm sorry it's all up with you, old man, though it's a nice an' comfy death, you told me so yourself, and you know we've all got to die some day! Besides, you done yours—no denying it—but I never done mine at all, so it's fair an' square enough, you must admit!"

The little cur was snoring in ten minutes. He was removed to the Transport side next morning. And Tom, left in solitude, would have given some days of the twelve remaining to have had him back.

The execution was fixed for the 30th. He would never see another June. Bassett came from day to day with news of the petition. It was being signed, but not as freely as at first. Bassett's disappointment was patent to the condemned man.

So next day Tom asked Bassett whether the noble unknown had also abandoned hope and effort.

"Not he," said Bassett in a half-disgusted tone. "He is moving heaven and earth; seeking private interviews with the king himself. He's quite capable of it. A wonderful man when he gets an idea into his head."

"But what put this idea into his head?"

"I haven't known."

Tom looked the attorney through and through and asked another question. "Did you tell him how much I should like to see him before I die—to thank him?"

"I did, but he is too busy working for you. He said that would do you more good."

"I see," said Tom sadly. "Another Cullford! Then why is he doing it? Cullford was paid. He paid him. But why, again? See here, you Bassett. Both you and he disbelieve in me—I know it now—but you are tired of your job and he is not. Why not? I believe you know. Then tell me, and let us part friends once and for all. You need bother your head no more about me, only tell me what you must know."

"I know nothing."

Bassett considered; but his private conviction (that there was a woman in it on the tip of his tongue, but ultimately shook his shrewd, cool head. There was nothing to be gained by speaking out. A dying man's gratitude was nothing. And there might be something to be lost. At any rate the safe side was the wise side, with that bill not even properly drawn up, so Tom and his solicitor parted coldly for the last time, and Tom tore up that slip of writing which had been handed to him at Marylebone, but retained next moment and treasured the torn pieces till the end.

And now at last his gallant spirit surrendered itself to the apathy of sheer despair, and the physical collapse which supervened was almost as complete as that of the brave but broken heart. A sudden outbreak of morbid appearances brought the surgeon in not to hasten to clean the foul tongue, to regulate the irregular pulse, moisten the parched skin and, in a word, to keep his man well enough to die on the following Tuesday. The good Macmurdo would as lief have given him a dart of deadly poison, but such humanity would have done him no good. The surgeon instead, the surgeon did his best for the poor doomed body, and the chaplain did his best for an immortal soul still filled with bitter rebellion and rage. But this physician was less successful, though not less kind—praying in his chamber for the poor impotent, but yet doing what in him lay to further such efforts as were still being made for a respite. Even on the last Sunday, when the stern divine furnished that incredible barbarism, the condemned man, the humane gentleman was upon the other tack and in almost hourly communication with Daintree himself.

Tom could not guess at that. The last to enter, the first to leave, the crowded chapel, he did so with the sound of his indignantly heaving upon him then at either Marylebone or the Old Bailey. The very chapel had been filled with sightseers—and he the sight! He had recognized the noble earl who had come to spy upon him before the trial, and with him ladies. And, to cap all, the ordinary had mentioned him by name in the sermon, taking the staid commendation for his text and directly addressing Tom from the pulpit. The outrage was unforgotten. When Mr. Cotton came to his cell soon after, the convict faintly refused ever to listen to him again.

"You have insulted me before men," he cried. "You need plead for me no more before God."

"Then what you suspect?"

When Mr. Cotton came to his cell soon after, the convict faintly refused ever to listen to him again.

"You have insulted me before men," he cried. "You need plead for me no more before God."

"But consider who you are, what you were," protested the reverend gentleman—"a clergyman's son, your poor father!"

"Not one word of him!" said Tom. "He would never have spoken as you spoke. There, sir, do not force me to say more. You have been kind to me in your own way, but the greatest kindness now is to leave me in peace until the end."

Next day he asked for pens and paper and spent the first afternoon upon an letter. Turnkeys, who came continually to see how he was bearing his last hours on earth, found him all ways writing, writing, writing, with the tears streaming down his face and yet the happiest look that they had seen in it yet. The turnkeys were practical, experienced men. They never doubted that what the poor man was writing was his full confession of the crime for which he was to suffer in the morning. So one brought another to spy upon him in the act of historic composition. And still he wrote; and still he wrote.

He was done before dark and ate his supper as he had eaten nothing for days. He seemed a happier man—that was only natural to the turnkey's mind. And yet the sealed packet set in front of him on the table was not yet addressed, and when the governor, paying him a visit in the evening, said, "Is this for me?" Tom answered, with quite a laugh, that it was not. It was for a friend, and the last act of his unplaned hands should be to add the address.

Tom leaped back into the cell and stood there with the full moon laughing in his white face and blinding eyes. Very well! He would brain the next turnkey who came near him and so at least deserve his death even if he could not slip into the dead man's clothes and thus away. So the hot fit had followed the cool; so madness trod upon the heels of rational thought.

The murderer of the turnkey had done it. He had left him a wounded man, and his maddened eyes were now ravaging round the cell in search of that with which to shed blood for blood. They lit upon the metal wastebasket fixed like the iron candlestick to the wall. In an instant the wastebasket was torn out by the roots and poised over the crouched yellow head, while the loose tin things rang like cymbals on the floor. The clatter was slow to cease. It was followed inevitably by hurried footsteps in the corridor. So much the better. The time was come.

Tom raised the wastebasket on high in both hands and himself on tiptoes to give the greater force to his blow as the door was flung hurriedly open. He was bringing it down upon gray hairs, when he saw dark color and, swerving, swung the apparatus with a crash against the wall.

"Lucky for you it was you!" he cried as the chaplain threw up his hands. "Unlucky for me. I'd have killed any other man in the place. Now you see what they've made of me. Better send them to tie me up. It's no good your wasting your breath."

The ordinary, wringing his hands and gazed in the frenzied face with its sponder and louder through the cell window came the clamor of the growing mob.

"Have you so utterly forgotten your God?" he cried the poor man, with the tears in his eyes. "He has never for-

"He has," said Tom doggedly. "or he wouldn't let me suffer for another man's crime."

"He has not," shouted the chaplain, doubtfully a paper from his pocket. "He has moved the hearts of those in authority over us. On your knees, sir, and give him thanks for your life has been spared at the eleventh hour!"

Priest's Revolver Kills Millionaire.
Puebla, Mexico, April 27.—A revolver, fired from the pocket of a millionaire, killed a priest, sent a bullet through the heart of St. Joseph Camarero, a young millionaire, while the two, in company with A. Guayana, a rich hacienda owner, were riding in Guayana's automobile. Guayana and the priest were immediately arrested and held strictly incommunicado pending an investigation.

The Nerves of School Children

As examination time approaches headaches become frequent as the result of eye strain and exhausted nerves. St. Vitus' Dance is preceded by incessant winking, shrugging of the shoulders and twitching of the face muscles.

Girls become hysterical, nervous, cry easily, get dizzy, and are unable to study. Under these circumstances the system demands such assistance as is afforded by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Failure to restore the depleted nerves makes a complete culture of health almost certain, for nervous disease does not get well of their own accord. Because of their mild and gentle action and extraordinary restorative influence Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are especially suited as a treatment for pale, weak and sickly children.

They instill new vigor into brain and nerves, add new firm flesh and tissue and build up the system generally. 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by W. M. FORTER, Druggist, Successor to T. E. Markell.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Connellsville readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Mary E. Ryan, of 298 East Main street, Uniontown, Pa., says: "Several years ago my son learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at one of our drug stores. He began using them for backache and kidney trouble and found complete relief. Although it is many years since he studied in the Uniontown papers to this cure, he has suffered no return of his former trouble and is still recommending the remedy which gave him relief. I also learned the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills through the experience of my niece, who lives with me. In 1902 she was confined to her bed for ten weeks being helpless with pain in the back. She suffered spasms of pain and was also greatly distressed with headaches. The kidney secretions were in a terrible state, being highly colored and containing sediment. She was treated by doctors, one of whom said she had spinal trouble. As none of them helped her I came to the conclusion that the kidneys were the cause of her trouble and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for her. By the time she had used two boxes she was up and around and four boxes brought about her recovery. I think these two cases are a good proof of the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BATTLE TO PROCEED.

Peacemakers at Frisco Rebuffed by Enraged Combatants in Labor War.

CITY HAS NO TROLLEY SERVICE

While Capitalists, Determined to Wipe Out Unions, Declare There is Nothing to Arbitrate—Strikers Also Display Aversion to That Resort.

San Francisco, May 11.—The street railway strike has developed into a fight to a finish. Neither side is willing to accept arbitration and the citizens' committee appointed to bring about peace have been unable to find any basis of settlement. The police force is too small to protect cars and none is run for passengers.

The United Railroads officers wanted to run a string of cars from the barn at Oak and Broderick streets through the burned area and north on Market street to the Ferry building. But the consent of the police department could not be obtained. As a compromise, two cars were run into the burned region as far as Larkin street. This trip was made twice.

On the first trip mounted policemen acted as outriders and more than a score of patrolmen rode alongside in automobiles. No violence was offered by the crowds. On the second trip the mounted officers were withdrawn to determine the temper of the crowds. Missiles were hurled from buildings and several persons injured.

Vice President Mullaly of the street car company said he had several hundred strikebreakers, motormen and conductors, quartered in the company's barns, and that they were competent to operate the entire street car system. Mayor Schmitz said the police department was "completely out of the situation."

Chief of Police Dineen said his men would preserve order.

Meantime the population of San Francisco is deprived of street car service, subjected to the alternative of walking or paying five prices for an execrable wagon service.

Reduced to an arithmetical aspect the problem is simply this: If 50 policemen are required to afford safe conduct to two street cars daily over six miles of tracks when no passengers are carried, how many 200 cars be operated hourly over 250 miles of tracks with 200,000 passengers with a total force of only 700 policemen, not more than half of whom can be on duty at once?

This is the question that the residents of San Francisco are asking each other and the reply is almost unanimous: "The police force is unable to cope with existing conditions."

PITTSBURG TO HAVE FAIR

Bruno's Island Track Leased by Tri-State Association.

Pittsburg, May 11.—This city is getting ready for a big fair at Bruno's Island race track the first week in September. The Tri-State Fair association has recently been chartered for the purpose and has leased the island track from the Matinee club. Bruno's Island is 10 minutes' down the Ohio river from the heart of the city. In connection with the fair a great week of light harness racing will be given. In stakes and purses $11,000 is offered. In addition to the trot and paces there will be running races on the half-mile track and steeplechases on the inflated course.

The stakes and free-for-all trot and paces are $1,000 each. The class races have $500 each offered. The stakes are 2:20 trot, 2:30 trot and 2:24 pace. The class races are free-for-all, 2:11, 2:15, 2:17, 2:19 and 2:24. The class paces are free-for-all, 2:11, 2:13, 2:15, 2:19 and 2:21. Stake entries close June 15 and class races August 24.

W. Lee McIlwain, secretary, has opened offices in 204 Lewis block. Application blanks are now being sent out.

THEIR HONEYMOON SHORT

Daughter of Cleveland Mayor Separates from Husband.

New York, May 11.—Little more than six weeks after their romantic marriage, Signor Frederico Mariani and his bride, the former Miss Beattie Johnson, daughter of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, have ended their honeymoon by separating. Mariani is back in his old bachelor quarters and has been there for more than a week, and the management of the Stratford in East Thirty-second street, has not seen and knows of no Mrs. Mariani.

Just what occurred that led the couple to put an abrupt end to their honeymoon is a mystery of which it is impossible at present to get a solution. When they were married in Cleveland in the latter part of March it was the culmination of a pretty love affair that interested the whole country. It is known, however, that their friends have done everything they could to prevent the parting, and that Mayor Johnson himself has been in this city for some days for this purpose.

Proof Positive.
The policeman had shot a feeling prisoner.
"It was an accident," he explained to his superior.
"What proof have you of that?"
"Why, I hit him, didn't I?" rejoined the accused with an air of finality.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TOOK PHENOL.

A Young Allegheny Matron Commits Suicide Owing to Ill Health This Morning.

Publishers' Press Telegram.
PITTSBURG, May 11.—Another young and pretty Allegheny matron, Mrs. Emma Fisher, aged 26 years, mother of a daughter four years of age, and wife of Raymond Fisher, an electrical worker, committed suicide this morning at an early hour by drinking phenol. Mrs. Fisher resided on No. 75 Elm street and it is supposed that her rash act was the result of ill health.

When retelling Friday night Mrs. Fisher appeared to be very cheerful and arose this morning about 2 o'clock and drank the contents of the bottle. Her husband was aroused by her agony and found her dying.

ACCIDENT TO BOYS.

Little Chaps from Morgan Station and Monarch Have Their Legs Cut Off Today.

Two small boys were brought to the Cottage State Hospital this afternoon, one from Morgan station and the other from Leisensburg No. 3. One boy had both legs so badly mangled that amputation was necessary and the other had one leg amputated at the hip. The boys were injured separately, but both arrived at New Haven about the same time, where the ambulance took them to the hospital.

When The Courier went to press the boys were being operated on. They were in fairly good condition when brought in. Both boys were injured on the railroad. Though the patients were brought in before 1:30 P. M., the hospital authorities didn't know their names yet at a quarter to 3 this afternoon.

In Retrospect.

IT IS with extreme satisfaction that we look over our business records of the past three years.

Three years that have witnessed the development and growth of our business to such a marked degree as to cause even the most pessimistic to acknowledge that in this short space of time we have attained a position that is enviable.

IT IS EXACTLY THREE YEARS AGO MAY 6 THAT THE FORMAL OPENING OF THIS ESTABLISHMENT WAS CELEBRATED, and it is due purely to our straightforward business principles and modern methods of conducting our business that we have been able to so thoroughly establish our position at the head of the retail merchandising in Fayette county.

The Things we Have Not Done.

We have never misrepresented a value. We have never insulted the intelligence of our public by professing to sell merchandise below cost at the height of the season. We have never belittled competition. We have never made boastful claims that were obviously untrue. We have never slighted a detail of our business that would in any little way add to the comfort or convenience of our patrons.

The Things We Have Done.

In three short years we have placed this establishment at the head of Fayette County's retail merchandising. This has been accomplished by upright business methods. We have offered you merchandise strictly new at all times. This has been made possible by semi-annual clearance sales conducted in January and July of each year. We have offered values the potency of which is made obvious by our rapid growth. We are doing a most satisfactory business and still have never told you that we were selling a single article for less than it cost us.

Our success is due alone to the support of a discriminating public. A public that possesses a strongly developed sense of reason and whose thrift directs their every purchase.

We appreciate thoroughly the strong public approval that our rapid development testifies and in the years to come will put forth every effort to deserve a continuance of the patronage that has been alone responsible for our past success.
